CURIOUS TREATMENT OF BABIES.—One of the most curious sights, in St. Petersburg, is the Foundling Hospital. It is a departure from established custom in other parts of the world that is mentioned. I am told that usually, when a woman wants to dry her baby, she sits down and takes it in her arms. Here she does not adopt this custom. At half a dozen points in the hospital, there are tables three feet high, and on each table is a covered with a cloth, and when an infant has been brought in one of the little babies, the nurse takes it to the table, and lays it down flat to dry. The baby is laid on its back, and a towel is laid over it, and a woman is stationed to watch it in a variety of positions, and when it is wanted, the nurse takes it to the table, and lays it down flat to dry. It is a very convenient arrangement, and I saw the children of our party—San Francisco.

SOMETHING PRETTY.

Wicker work-baskets are pretty trimmed by weaving in the openings inch-wide satin ribbon of a cardinal color. A row of this should be threaded around the bent over rim by putting the end of the ribbon through one opening, over one, and pull it through the third to the under-side again, spreading out the ribbon on the upper-side the full width in the center; weave the ribbon in this way all around the edge, and join the ends on top with a little bow.

On the opposite side of the basket fasten a little square cushion, for pins and loose needles, with a piece of the ribbon placed diagonally around it and tied in a bow to the basket-edge.

Unless the bottom of the basket is very firm and close, fit a pasteboard exactly to it and cover neatly with silesia of the same shade of the ribbon used.

Expensive little baskets for holding flannels, thread and scissors can be made very ornamental in this way.

"The Secret Angler" is advertised. The scientific angler is the man who goes fishing with $5 worth of tackle

SUGGESTIONS OF VALUE.

POLISH oilcloth with kerosene.
WASH matting with salted water.
CLEAN grained wood with cold tea.
CHARCOAL in the cellar sweetens the whole house.

SALT fish are quickest and best freshened by soaking in sour milk.

LOBSTERS boiled and served on toast makes a dainty dish for a lunch or tea.

COLD rain water and soap will remove machine grease from washable fabrics.

A STICK of hard wood, made in the shape of a tiny car, is the most convenient thing to stir cake with. Any man or boy can easily make one.

TO CLEAN carpet rugs take Indian meal and sprinkle over them. Let it remain for a short time and then sweep off, and your rugs will look as bright as new.

TO PREVENT the dullness and dinginess incident to the wear of oilcloth, rub it over with a piece of flannel moistened with kerosene, after washing the oil-cloth in clean water.

The proper arrangement of flowers may be stated in a few words: Never put more than three varieties or colors in the same vase or bouquet, and let these colors be such as perfectly harmonize. Arrange the flowers so that each one can be seen entire. In all your arrangements, imitate nature in hers.

The staining of bricks red is effected by melting one ounce of glue in a gallon of water, then adding a piece of alum as large as an egg, one-half pound of Venetian red, and one pound of Spanish brown; richness or darkness is increased by using more red or brown. For coloring black, beat the bricks and dip in fluid asphaltum or in a hot mixture of linseed oil and asphalt.

REPAIR paint or calcimine is applied to walls, every crevice should be filled with plaster or cement. For the calcimine, put a quarter of a pound of white glue in cold water over night, and heat gradually in the morning until dissolved. Mix eight pounds of whitening with hot water, add the dissolved glue, and stir together, adding warm water until about the consistency of thick cream. Use a calcimine brush, and finish as you go along. If skin milk is used instead of water, the glue may be omitted.

PERSONS traveling by railway are subject to continued annoyance from the flying embers. On getting into the eye they are not only painful for the moment, but are often the cause of long suffering that ends in total loss of sight. A very simple and effective cure is within the reach of every one, and would prevent much suffering and expense were it generally known. It is simply one or two grains of flaxseed. These may be placed in the eye without injury or pain to that delicate organ, and shortly they begin to swell and dissolve a glutinous substance that covers the ball of the eye, enveloping any foreign substance that may be in it. The irritation of cutting the membrane is thus prevented and the annoyance may soon be washed out. A dozen of these grains stowed away in the vest pocket may prove of great value in an emergency.

FISH AND THEIR ENEMIES.

A very short visit to the fisheries exhibition will satisfy anyone of the prodigious number of enemies, born fishermen all of them, of which our fellow-creatures in this live in dread. Indeed, so numerous are they that it almost seems a meanness in man, the cleverest and strongest of animals, to join in such a universal persecution of the fishes. Not only do the banks of rivers and ports swarm with hostile nations in the shape of frogs and birds, and all the shores of all the seas, the rocks and the islands, teem with myriads of hungry nimble fisher-things, voracious in appetite and unerring in pursuit, but the water itself, both fresh and salt, abounds with cannibal tribes that are perpetually in pursuit of their weaker or less active neighbors. And then upon the top of them comes man, with his tremendous agencies, scouring the gas and rivers and lakes in all directions. To meet this universal ichthyophagy nature has but one resource and weapon. She makes fish prolific out of all proportion to their destroyers. Their fecundity is one of her chief miracles. For instance, a cod weighing twenty-one pounds has been found to contain 11,000,000 of eggs! This single fact seems almost enough to turn the scale of sympathy against the fishes, but when, on the other hand, it is remembered that a solitary porpoise would consider 11,000,000 of eggs a mere luncheon, the scale wavers again, and the prodigious conspiracy of man against the creatures of the water appears out of all proportion to the results likely to be attained. Next one remembers that from one single river in America 15,000,000 pounds of salmon are tinned up for food every year, and that yet last year there were more fish in the river than the tinning (or "canning") establishments could manage! Or that Freshmen alone dredge 400,000,000 fry in the season; and the immensity of the produce of the sea makes the preparations for its harvesting dwindle again into insignificance. But whichever way the doubt turns in the end—whether the fish are unfairly treated in having all the rest of the world at their heels, so to speak, or whether, considering their numbers and their eminent edibility, they do not come off better than they deserve, the solid fact remains on the mind that fisheries, as one of the world's great industries, well deserved such a notable exposition as this now open at South Kensington. —London Telegraph.

LIFTED INTO THE ALLEY.

The Member Who Was Too Pretty to Remain with the Lime-Kiln Club.

"If Clarence De Melville Bungs are present with us to-night, I should like to speak to him," said Brother Gaudin, as the Lime-Kiln Club meeting opened. Brother Bungs was on the back row with a looking-glass in his hands, and a new brand of hair-oil on his hair. He rose up with a scrape and a bow, and a great spread of a blue silk handkerchief, and finally stood before the President's desk.

"Bruder Bungs," resumed the man, "I reckon you are a member of the Lime-Kiln Club, ain't you?"

"Yes, sah," replied the brother, who his face betrayed the fact that he was tickled half to death.

"But—by de way, Bruder Bungs, what am your present business?"

"I've out of a job, sah."

"When you work how much do you sign?"

"As high as seven dollars a week, sah."

"Just so. Am dat suit o' clothes paid fur?"

"No, sah."

"An' you am how many weeks behind on yer board?"

"Not over six, sah."

"An' you owe dis lodge $3 dues?"

"Yes, sah."

"An' you owe members here as much as $20 fur borrowed money?"

"I've borrowed some, sah."

"Bruder Bungs, I've had some experience wid putty men, an' I reckon seed one yet who wasn't a fraud on a word m'head. When a man says to be putty all de loss sense leave de head. No man kin labor and be putty too. He darfo' lets work alone."

"Heads his board, his tator, his sm'k'ing, an' all his friends. He sm'k'ing, an' sm'k'ing like a chimney, but he don't pay up. Every body beats somebody else's tator, an' every guggle gets somebody else's tator. I've had my eye on you for some time."

"Yes, sah."

"Six months ago you had seed work, good pay, respectable clothes, an' was outer debt. You sot out to be putty, an' to-day you wouldn't sell a mull to pay yer debts. You sm'k'ing, an' your hair curls lead fully, but your tator an' whistling fur his tator, an' dat suit. You sm'k'ing like a chimney, an' raise yer hat like a Chesterfield, an' yer butes ain't paid fur!"

"I've gwine to square up, sah."

"Maybe you is, Bruder Bungs, but it am too late, so fur as dis club an' consarned. Secretary!"

"Yes, sah."

"Escort dis passon to de alley, den!"

He am too putty to remain here, we us. He am gwine out ewin' to de dues, an' well, nelly r mind."

There was need to rest the janitor. Every one could picture him, he cleared a space to swing his right leg, and if anybody doubted it, at Clarence De Melville Bungs was "lifted into the alley he had only to listen to the labored breathing of the janitor as he returned to his seat. —Free Press.

Two Beings in One.

A lady correspondent writes from the Sacramento Insane Asylum of a very beautiful girl with whom she became acquainted: "I used to take walks with her, and would almost forget my surroundings and circumstances until my companion would release my arm with the remark, 'I must go now; my spell is coming on.' This beautiful girl was really two beings—now sensible, modest, amiable, a companion for me, and, suddenly, by some wonderful process, she was transformed to a writhing, contorted lunatic. She always knew when this change was approaching, and retired to her room, to remain until the paroxysm had passed."

The village of Zoar, Ohio, contains about 300 inhabitants. The population has been the same since 1817, without increase or decrease to any noticeable extent. The inhabitants work for the good of the community, which owns and controls the village. The money goes into one common treasury. The necessities of life, including food, provisions and garments are furnished by the village officials, who are elected annually by ballot. The people are devout and worship after the manner of the Friends.

DIDN'T KNOW OF ANY.

A passenger on a certain road running out of Buffalo failed to find a parlor-car on the train, the smoking-car was occupied by immigrants, and the train was two hours late. He had discovered all this when some one added that he would have to ride nine hours before getting anything to eat. When the conductor came along, the passenger growled out:

"Is there a meaner railroad than this in America?"

"My dear fellow, I can't say as to that," kindly replied the official, "but if there is one with more mortgages on it I'd like to hear it located!" —Wall Street News.

A POINTED QUESTION.

A little shaver was rolling upon the floor, and suddenly stepping and looking up to his mother, asked:

"Mamma, who do you love?"

"I love papa and Jimmie and Minnie and Lottie," she replied.

But she left the young questioner out, allowing, of course, that he expected her to name him first, and possibly him only, and then she waited to see what the effect would be. But he was not disconcerted, as he at once replied, very much to her surprise and astonishment:

"You are a nice one not to love yourself."
